

My career started one day long ago when I was invited to be a “guest teen DJ” on WLS Chicago. The 15 minutes of fame on that radio program was like a drug I had to have more of. From that time on, I knew I wanted to use my voice to communicate.

In the army, I was stationed in Alaska and worked for the Armed Forces Radio Network. After my tour of duty was complete, I stayed around in Anchorage working for various stations for several decades. An ad agency once asked me to voice some commercials for a bank. Amazed that someone would actually pay me to be their spokesperson, my voice over career had begun.

Decades later I am still doing what I love. Now from my professional, ISDN equipped home studio, I record my voice for hundreds of clients worldwide. SWAROVSKI OPTIC, WORLD BANK, LOWE’S HOME CENTERS, AMERICAN CRUISE LINES, MEDTRONIC DIABETES, and many others. I’ve also had the pleasure of narrating a number of audio books.

The links below will take you to my official website for audio samples of my work. The second link is to some of my book projects.
